

CONTENTS OF VOLUME III.

NUMBER IX.

ART.	PAGE
I.—State and Prospects of Ireland	1
II.—The Benedictines: Monte Cassino	44
III.—Sacred Poetry	70
IV.—Acton's Sermons, with a Memoir of his Life	105
V.—Potts' Edition of Euclid's Elements of Geometry	108
VI.—Patterson's Zoology: for the use of Schools	112
VII.—National Education	115

NUMBER X.

I.—Christianity and the Formative Arts	157
II.—Modern Painters	213
III.—Characteristics of Men of Genius	231
IV.—The Minutes of the Committee of Council for 1846	238
V.—State of Protestantism in Germany	255
VI.—Aspland's Sermons	290

NUMBER XI.

I.—Christian Theology in its Relation to Modern Ideas and Modern Wants	297
II.—England's Weak Point: Sismondi on Political Economy and Government	326
III.—Prichard's Researches into the Physical History of Mankind	355
IV.—The Marquis of Wellesley	370
V.—Archdeacon Hare on the Victory of Faith	396
VI.—Notices of New Publications	417
1. Dr. Edward Hincks on Egyptian and Persepolitan Antiquities.
2. The Collected Works of Henry Ware.
3. Dialogues on Universal Salvation.
4. Stebbing, on the Evils of the Established Church.

NUMBER XII.

ART.	PAGE
I.—Italy, the Pope, and the Jesuits . . .	423
II.—Berber Languages . . .	461
III.—The Protestant Reformation in France . . .	476
IV.—Festus, a Poem . . .	511
V.—The Freedom of Thought and Faith, in the first century of the Empire and of Christianity. By W. A. Schmidt	542
VI.—The Course of Divine Revelation . . .	585

